- (a) by interlocutory order,
 - (i) grant an injunction, or
 - (ii) appoint a receiver or receiver and manager; and
- (b) make a mandatory interlocutory order,

Injunctions and receivers

where it appears to the court to be just or convenient to do so.

(2) An interlocutory order made under subsection (1) may include such terms as the court considers to be just.

Terms

45. (1) In this section, “labour dispute” means a dispute or difference concerning

“labour dispute” defined

- (a) the terms, tenure or conditions of employment; or
- (b) the association or representation of persons in negotiating, fixing, maintaining, changing or seeking to arrange terms or conditions of employment, regardless of whether the disputants stand in the proximate relation of employer and employee.

(2) Subject to subsection (8), no injunction to restrain a person from any act in connection with a labour dispute shall be granted without notice.

Notice

(3) In an application for an injunction to restrain a person from any act in connection with a labour dispute, a court must be satisfied that reasonable efforts to obtain police assistance, protection and action to prevent or remove any alleged danger of damage to property, injury to persons, obstruction of or interference with lawful entry upon or exit from the premises in question, or breach of the peace have been unsuccessful.

Steps before injunction proceeding

(4) Subject to subsection (8), evidence in support of an application for an injunction to restrain a person from any act in connection with a labour dispute shall be provided by way of affidavits confined to statement of facts within the knowledge of the deponent, but any party may by notice to the party filing such affidavit require the attendance of the deponent to be cross-examined at the hearing.

Evidence

- Interim injunction (5) A court may grant an interim injunction to restrain a person from any act in connection with a labour dispute for a period of not longer than four days.
- Notice (6) Subject to subsection (8), at least two days notice of the application for an interim injunction to restrain a person from any act in connection with a labour dispute shall be given to the responding party and to any other person affected thereby but not named in the application.
- Idem* (7) The notice required by subsection (6) to persons other than the responding party may be given,
 (a) where such persons are members of a labour organization, by personal service upon an officer or agent of the labour organization; and
 (b) where such persons are not members of a labour organization, by posting the notice in a conspicuous place at the location of the activity sought to be restrained where it can be read by any persons affected, and such service and posting of the notice under this subsection shall be deemed to be sufficient notice to all such persons and to have been given as of the day that the notice is served or posted.
- Interim injunction without notice (8) Where notice as required by subsection (6) is not given, a court may grant an interim injunction where
 (a) the case is otherwise a proper one for the granting of an interim injunction;
 (b) notice as required by subsection (6) could not be given because the delay necessary to do so would result in irreparable damage or injury, a breach of the peace or an interruption in an essential public service;
 (c) reasonable notification, by telephone or otherwise, has been given to the persons to be affected or where any of such persons are members of a labour organization, to an officer of that labour organization or to a person authorized to accept service of process on behalf of that labour organization or trade union, or where it is shown that such notice could not have been given; and
 (d) proof of all material facts for the purposes of clauses (a), (b) and (c) is established by oral evidence.
- Misrepresentation, withholding are contempt of court (9) The misrepresentation of any fact or the withholding of any qualifying relevant matter, directly or indirectly provided by or on behalf of the applicant for an injunction under this section, constitutes a contempt of court.

INTEREST IN LAND

46. (1) The commencement of a proceeding in which an interest in land is in question is not notice of the proceeding to a person who is not a party to the proceeding until a certificate of pending litigation is issued by a court and the certificate is registered in the proper land registry office under subsection (2).

Certificate of pending litigation

(2) Where a certificate of pending litigation is issued under subsection (1), the certificate may be registered under the Registry Act R.S.P.E.I. 1988, Cap. R-10.

Registration

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply to a proceeding for foreclosure or sale on a registered mortgage or to enforce a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act R.S.P.E.I. 1988, Cap. M-4.

Exception

(4) A party who registers a certificate of pending litigation under subsection (2) without a reasonable claim to an interest in the land is liable for any damages sustained by any person as a result of the registration of such certificate.

Liability where no reasonable claim

(5) The liability for damages referred to in subsection (4) and the amount thereof may be determined in the proceeding in respect of which the certificate of pending litigation was registered or in a separate proceeding.

Determination of damages

(6) A court may make an order discharging a certificate of pending litigation

Order discharging certificate

(a) where the party at whose instance it was issued

(i) claims a sum of money in place of or as an alternative to the interest in the land claimed,

(ii) does not have a reasonable claim to the interest in the land claimed, or

(iii) does not prosecute the proceeding with reasonable diligence;

(b) where the interests of the party at whose instance it was issued can be adequately protected by another form of security; or

(c) on any other ground that is considered just,

and the court may, in making the order, impose such terms as to the giving of security or otherwise as the court considers just.

(7) Where a certificate of pending litigation is discharged by an order of a court, any person may deal with the land as fully as if the certificate had not been registered.

“health practitioner”
defined

48. (1) In this section, “health practitioner” means a person licensed to practise medicine or dentistry in Prince Edward Island or any other jurisdiction, a psychologist registered under the Psychologists Act R.S.P.E.I. 1988, Cap. P-27.1 or a person certified or registered as a psychologist by another jurisdiction.

Order for physical or mental examination

(2) Where the physical or mental condition of a party to a proceeding is in question, a court, on application, may order the party to undergo a physical or mental examination by one or more health practitioners.

Idem

(3) Where the physical or mental condition of a party to a proceeding is first questioned in the proceeding by another party, an order shall not be made under this section unless the allegation is relevant to a material issue in the proceeding, and there is good reason to believe that there is substance to the allegation.

Further examinations

(4) The court may, on application, order further physical or mental examinations.

Examiner may ask questions

(5) Where an order is made under this section, the party examined shall answer the questions of the examining health practitioner relevant to the examination and the answers given are admissible in evidence.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS

Constitutional
questions

49. (1) Where a constitutional question is raised in a proceeding in a court as to the constitutional validity or constitutional applicability of an Act of Parliament or the Legislative Assembly or of a regulation or bylaw made thereunder, the Act, regulation or bylaw shall not be adjudged to be invalid or inapplicable unless notice of the constitutional question has been served, in accordance with subsection (2), on the Attorney General of Canada and the Attorney General of Prince Edward Island.

(2) Unless the court otherwise orders, the party who raises a constitutional question shall give the notice of the question to the Attorney General of Canada and the Attorney General of Prince Edward Island in accordance with subsection (1),

Notice of constitutional question

(a) as soon as practicable after the constitutional question is raised; and

(b) not later than 30 days before the date set by the court for argument of the constitutional question.

(3) Where the Attorney General of Canada and the Attorney General of Prince Edward Island are entitled to notice of a constitutional question under subsection (1), they are entitled to notice of any appeal in respect of the constitutional question.

Notice of appeal

(4) Where the Attorney General of Canada or the Attorney General of Prince Edward Island is entitled to notice of a constitutional question under subsection (1), each Attorney General is entitled to adduce evidence and make submissions to the court in respect of the constitutional question.

Right of Attorneys General, to be heard

(5) An Attorney General who makes submissions under subsection (4) in respect of a constitutional question shall be deemed to be a party to the proceeding for the purpose of any appeal in respect of the constitutional question.

CHANGE OF VENUE

51. Where a party applies to a court to change the place of hearing in a proceeding, an agreement between the parties as to the place of hearing is not binding on a court, but the court may take the agreement into account.

Agreement as to place of hearing

DAMAGES

52. In a proceeding in a court where damages are claimed for personal injuries, the court may, with the consent of all affected parties,

Periodic payment and review of damages

(a) order the defendant in the proceeding to pay all or part of the award for damages periodically on such terms as the court considers just; and

(b) order that the award for damages be subject to future review and revision in such circumstances and on such terms as the court considers just.

Assessment of damages

53. (1) Where damages are to be assessed by a court in respect of

- (a) a continuing cause of action;
- (b) repeated breaches of a recurring obligation; or
- (c) intermittent breaches of a continuing obligation, the damages, including damages for breaches occurring after the commencement of the proceeding, shall be assessed down to the time of the assessment.

Guidance to jury, amount of damages

(2) In an action for damages for personal injury, the Supreme Court may give guidance to the jury on the amount of damages and the parties may make submissions to the jury on the amount of damages.

Appeal, damages for personal injuries

(3) On an appeal from an award for damages for personal injury, the Court of Appeal may, if it considers it just, substitute its own assessment of the damages.

FOREIGN CURRENCY

Foreign money obligations

54. (1) Subject to subsections (3) and (4), where a person obtains an order to enforce an obligation in a foreign currency, the order shall require payment of an amount in Canadian currency sufficient to purchase the amount of the obligation in the foreign currency at a chartered bank in Prince Edward Island at the close of business on the first day on which the bank quotes a Canadian dollar rate for purchase of the foreign currency before the day payment of the obligation is received by the creditor.

Multiple payments

(2) Where more than one payment is made under an order referred to in subsection (1), the rate of conversion shall be the rate determined as provided in subsection (1) for each payment.

Foreign currency

(3) Subject to subsection (4), where, in a proceeding to enforce an obligation in a foreign currency, a court is satisfied that conversion of the amount of the obligation to Canadian currency as provided in subsection (1) would be inequitable to any party, the order may require payment of an amount in Canadian currency sufficient to purchase the amount of the obligation in the foreign currency at a chartered bank in Prince Edward Island on such other day as the court considers equitable in the circumstances.

Conversion to Canadian currency

(4) Where an obligation enforceable in Prince Edward Island provides for a manner of conversion to Canadian currency of an amount in a foreign currency, a court shall give effect to the manner of conversion to Canadian currency set out in the obligation.

(5) Where a writ of seizure and sale or notice of garnishment is issued under an order of a court to enforce an obligation in a foreign currency, the day the sheriff, bailiff or clerk of the court receives money under the writ or notice shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section and any obligation referred to in subsection (4), to be the day payment is received by the creditor.

(2) After the first day of the last month of each quarter, the Registrar shall forthwith

Calculation and publication of interest rate

(a) determine the prejudgment and post-judgment interest rate for the next quarter; and

(b) publish in the Gazette a table showing the rate determined under clause (a) for the next quarter and for all the previous quarters during the preceding ten years.

Prejudgment interest	57. (1) A person who is entitled to an order for the payment of money is entitled to claim and have included in the order an award of interest thereon at the prejudgment interest rate, calculated from the date the cause of action arose to the date of the order.
Exception for non-pecuniary loss on personal injury	(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), the rate of interest on damages for non-pecuniary loss in an action for personal injury shall be the discount rate determined by the rules.
Past pecuniary loss	(3) If the order includes an amount for past pecuniary loss, the interest calculated under subsection (1) shall be calculated on the total past pecuniary loss at the end of each six-month period and at the date of the order.
Exclusion	(4) Interest shall not be awarded under subsection (1), <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (a) on exemplary or punitive damages; (b) on interest accruing under this section; (c) on an award of costs in the proceeding; (d) on that part of the order that represents pecuniary loss arising after the date of the order and that is identified by a finding of the court; (e) with respect to the amount of any advance payment that has been made towards settlement of the claim, for the period after the advance payment has been made; (f) where the order is made on consent, except by consent of the debtor; or (g) where interest is payable by a right other than under this section.
Default judgment	(5) Where a judgment is obtained by default, the Prothonotary may exercise the functions of the Supreme Court under this section.
Interest deemed part of order	(6) For the purposes of enforcing an order, interest awarded under this section shall be deemed to be included in the order.
Post-judgment interest	58. (1) Money owing under an order, including costs to be assessed or costs fixed by a court, bears interest at the post-judgment interest rate, calculated from the date of the order.
Interest on periodic payments	(2) Where an order provides for periodic payments, each payment in default shall bear interest only from the date of default.
Interest on order originating outside province	(3) Where an order made by a court is based on an order made outside Prince Edward Island or an order made outside Prince Edward Island is filed with the Supreme Court for the purpose of enforcement, money owing under the order bears interest at the rate, if any, applicable to the order made outside Prince Edward Island by the law of the place where the order was made.

(4) Where costs are assessed without an order, the costs bear interest at the post-judgment interest rate in the same manner as if an order were made for the payment of costs on the date the person to whom the costs are payable became entitled to the costs.

Costs assessed without order

(5) Interest shall not be awarded under this section where interest is payable by a right other than under this section.

Other provision for interest

(6) Where post-judgment interest is payable by a right other than under this section, the rate of such interest shall not exceed the post-judgment interest rate.

Post-judgement interest

59. (1) A court may, where it considers it just to do so, in respect of the whole or any part of the amount on which interest is payable under section 57 or 58,

Direction of the court

- (a) disallow interest under either section;
- (b) allow interest at a rate higher or lower than that provided in either section; or
- (c) allow interest for a period other than that provided in either section.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), the court shall take into account

Idem

- (a) changes in the market interest rate;
- (b) the circumstances of the case;
- (c) the fact that an advance payment was made;
- (d) the circumstances of medical disclosure by the plaintiff;
- (e) the amount claimed and the amount recovered in the proceeding;
- (f) the conduct of any party that tended to shorten or to lengthen unnecessarily the duration of the proceeding; and
- (g) any other relevant consideration.

60. (1) Unless otherwise provided by any Act, the costs of and incidental to a proceeding authorized to be taken in a court are in the discretion of the court, and the court may determine by whom and to what extent the costs shall be paid.

Costs

(2) Nothing herein deprives a trustee, mortgagee or other person of any right to costs out of a particular estate or fund.

Trustees, etc.

(3) In a proceeding to which the Government is a party, costs awarded to the Government shall not be disallowed or reduced on assessment merely because they relate to a barrister or solicitor who is a salaried agent or employee of the Government, and costs recovered on behalf of the Government shall be paid into the Operating Fund.

PUBLIC ACCESS

Hearings open to public	61. (1) Unless otherwise provided by any other Act, the rules or a court order, all court hearings shall be open to the public.
Exception	(2) A court may order the public to be excluded from a hearing where the possibility of serious harm or injustice to any person justifies a departure from the general principle that court hearings should be open to the public.
Disclosure of information	(3) Where a proceeding is heard in the absence of the public, disclosure of information relating to the proceeding is not contempt of court unless the court has expressly prohibited the disclosure of the information.
Documents are public	62. (1) Unless otherwise provided by any other Act, the rules or a court order, any person is entitled, on payment of the prescribed fee, to see any document filed in a civil proceeding in a court.
Sealing documents	(2) For purpose of confidentiality, a court may order that any document filed in a civil proceeding in the court be sealed and not form part of the public record.

MISCELLANEOUS

Multiplicity of proceedings	63. As far as possible, a multiplicity of legal proceedings shall be avoided.
Joint liability	64. (1) Where two or more persons are jointly liable in respect of the same cause of action, an order against, or the release of, one of them does not preclude an order being made against any other in the same or a separate proceeding.
Two proceedings in respect of same damage	(2) Where a person who has suffered damages brings two or more proceedings in respect of the damages, the person is not entitled to costs in any of the proceedings, except the first proceeding in which an order is obtained, unless a court is of the opinion that there were reasonable grounds for bringing more than one proceeding.
Vexatious proceedings	65. (1) Where a court is satisfied, on application, that a person has persistently and without reasonable grounds <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (a) instituted vexatious proceedings in any court; or (b) conducted a proceeding in any court in a vexatious manner, the court may order that, except by leave of a court, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (c) no further proceeding may be instituted by the person in any court; or (d) a proceeding previously instituted by the person in any court shall not be continued.

(2) Where a person against whom an order under subsection (1) has been made seeks leave to institute or continue a proceeding, the person shall do so by way of an application in the court.

Application for leave to proceed

- (3) Where an application for leave is made under subsection (2),
- (a) leave shall be granted only if the court is satisfied that the proceeding sought to be instituted or continued is not an abuse of process and that there are reasonable grounds for the proceeding;
 - (b) the person making the application for leave may seek the rescission of the order made under subsection (1) but may not seek any other relief on the application;
